DAY 1 -WORKSHOP (22.03.2024) FORENOON

1. STANDARD PENETRATION TEST:

- During our session, we will delve into the myriad benefits of the Standard Penetration Test (SPT) in geotechnical engineering.
- Firstly, we will illustrate how the SPT provides a reliable assessment of soil strength by showcasing data correlations between blow counts and soil properties, empowering engineers to gauge the stability of foundations and slopes accurately.
- Furthermore, we will demonstrate how SPT results aid in comprehensive site characterization, revealing crucial soil variations at different depths essential for informed construction planning and site selection.
- We'll also highlight the pivotal role of SPT in foundation design, where engineers leverage the test data to determine suitable foundation types, ensuring structural integrity and minimizing settlement risks.
- Through case studies, we'll showcase how SPT informs geotechnical studies for infrastructure projects, facilitating risk assessment and mitigation strategies against potential hazards such as liquefaction and slope instability. Moreover, we'll underscore the cost-efficiency of SPT, emphasizing its role in optimizing project budgets by preemptively addressing ground-related issues.
- Lastly, we'll discuss how SPT compliance with regulatory standards ensures adherence to building codes, fostering safety and regulatory compliance in construction endeavors. Through practical demonstrations and insightful discussions, participants will gain a holistic understanding of SPT's significance, from theory to real-world application.

Certification Policy:

- Certificate of Participant for all the workshop participants.

TECHNICAL EVENTS

1. CLASH OF CODES

Clash of Code is a competitive coding platform where programmers can participate in quick, timed coding challenges against each other. The platform typically offers short coding problems that range in difficulty and require participants to write code to solve them. Participants have a limited amount of time to solve the problem and submit their solution.

Teams: 2 members per team

Rounds: 3

Round 1 - Quiz Round:

The Quiz round will be conducted on Quizizz platform, featuring approximately 20 questions related to programming languages like C, C++, Java, and Python.

Round 2 - Logistic Coding:

Participants will be presented with sample input and output scenarios without accompanying questions. They must comprehend the logic behind the input-output relationship to solve the provided programs. Programming languages including C, C++, Java, and Python are permissible.

Round 3 - Coding Round:

This round will feature challenging questions, and teams will alternate coding between members. One team member will commence coding while the other stands opposite. When the buzzer rings, the roles will switch, and the second member will start coding while the first member waits for their turn. The conversation between the team members while coding is not allowed. For each 10 minutes 1 minute is allowed for discussing. Programming languages such as C, C++, Python, and Java are accepted.

Rules:

- Discussion between the other team members is not allowed.
- Instructions must be followed.
- Any unauthorized behaviour will result in automatic disqualification.

7. BLIND CODING

Blind coding competition, participants are deliberately placed in an environment where they must rely solely on their intrinsic programming knowledge and problem-solving skills. Unlike traditional coding environments where developers have access to helpful tools such as syntax highlighting, code completion, and extensive documentation, blind coding competitions strip away these crutches, creating a more challenging and intellectually stimulating atmosphere.

Blind coding competitions are not only about demonstrating technical proficiency; they also test participants' creativity, adaptability, and ability to think critically under pressure. These competitions are popular in educational settings, coding bootcamps, and tech industry recruitment processes, providing participants with a unique opportunity to showcase their talents and compete against their peers in a challenging yet rewarding environment.

One of the most highlighted topic of the discussion is about the Eisenhower Time Matrix, which helped us figure out how to prioritize our tasks like important, not important, urgent, not urgent. We also learned about different behaviors being assertive, passive, aggressive, or passive-aggressive and got a guide on how to be more assertive.

The workshop was made fun with games about time management and behavior, making learning hands-on. We also discovered how important body language is in good communication. Overall, the workshop not only gave us practical tools for getting better but also made a space where we could join in and think about ourselves. With Mr. Subramanian's guidance, inspiring talks, and the fun activities

The Mechanical Engineering Association organized "Fusion Forum- A technical connection event" on 22 July, 2023. This event was hosted by Mr. A.Manikandan, Mr.S.Sukesh Rajaguru and Mr.A.Thangamuniasamy of final year Mechanical Department. This is a technical connection event in which pictures are shown to the participants. The pictures contain indirect clues about the technical term which needs to be combined together to find the technical term. 7 teams from final year mechanical department and 6 teams of third year mechanical department participated in this event. A time of 5 minutes was allocated to guess and find the technical term. Winners were selected based on the maximum points scored by guessing the correct term. The main objective of this event is to develop the thinking capacity by analyzing the images, looks for pattern or relationships between them and then deduce the word that ties them all together. This is a type of brain teaser which is an educational tool to reach the students in a easy way.
